GUEST SPEAKER

Eric Murray

Double Olympic champion, Eric Murray won back to back Gold medals at his fourth Olympic Games, having won gold in the coxless pair with crewmate Hamish Bond at the London 2012 and Rio 2016 Olympic games.

Eric won his first world championship medal as a member of the New Zealand coxless four at the 2007 World Rowing Championships. Murray then went on to become a member of the triple World Champion coxless pair with Hamish Bond. They won gold at the 2009 World Rowing Championships, then went on to retain their title at the 2010 and 2011 World Rowing Championships.

Murray's achievements in both the coxless four and the coxless pair have seen him win two Halberg sports awards for team of the year, firstly in 2007 with the four, and then in 2009 with Bond.

In the 2013 New Year Honours, Murray was appointed a Member of the New Zealand Order of Merit for services to rowing. In 2018 the International Rowing Federation awarded Murray and Bond the Thomas Keller Medal for their outstanding international rowing career. It is the sport's highest honour and is awarded within five years of the athlete's retirement, acknowledging an exceptional rowing career and exemplary sportsmanship.
