Production Notes

Direction

After the disruption of the last few years, it is incredibly exciting to have a large scale musical back onto the stage at SHC.

The fact that we have made it to this point rests on the shoulders of the amazing production team. In particular, I want to publically thank Joanne, Jess, and Kerry for all of their support and advice. Without them this performance could not have been possible.

However, the biggest thank you must go to this wonderfully talented cast.

With only 10 weeks between the first read through and opening night, they have risen to every challenge thrown at them; from the complex choreography to Freddie Mercury's harmonies. They should be really proud of this show; I certainly am.

- Scott Chalmers

Choreography

As the Director of Geronimo Performing Arts, dancing is second nature to me.

I am so proud of what a group of mostly non-dancers has been able to achieve due to their dedication and hard work.

I absolutely love sharing my passion with students, and teaching the cast of We Will Rock You to achieve great things, combined with their perseverance, has definitely been a highlight for me!

We have worked hard, shared many laughs, had fun along the way, and have a final product that I am so incredibly proud to be a part of.

It truly is an honor!

I hope you enjoy the show as much as I have enjoyed being a part of it!

- Jess Walker

Musical Direction

This year's production has provided many challenges for the band. Not only did we have to learn 23 separate pieces of Queen's iconic music, but also deal with being in a separate location from the stage.

While the cast are performing on stage, we will be upstairs in a studio, watching a live video feed from the theatre, while a return feed gives the cast a view of us.

This technical feat is only possible thanks to the skill of 'Fluffy', our sound engineer, and the talent of the band and performers, who have very quickly managed to master the timing of the songs and to work together despite not seeing each other.

It has been a big ask, but this band and cast have risen to the challenge.

Special Recognition:

Special acknowledgement goes to Jess and Kerry Walker, Directors of Geronimo Performing Arts, for their enormous generosity.

In addition to the creative input and advice which has shaped this production into the success it is, they must be thanked for the generous provision of much of the technical elements of this show. They have provided for us; the video screens, wireless microphones, lighting fixtures and lasers, as well as many of the costumes.

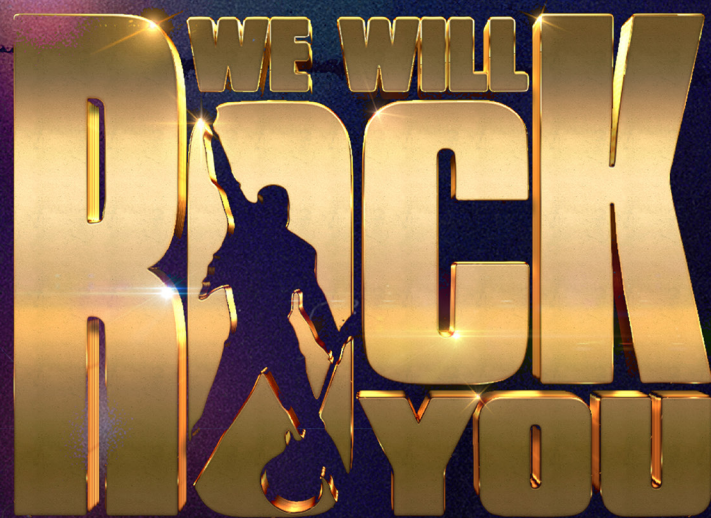

We are especially grateful for this support.
